ABSTRACT

It is noteworthy and notable one that India's democracy has been one of the millstone elements in the world administration and governance thereby it has been playing vibrant and important role in the international political gamut. Though all countries are varied at its connotation, history, foreign policy, international relations and constitutional ideologies, India is the only country has been playing important and significant role in the international policy making, decision making and problems solving without any variations from its predecessors made neat and legible international principles. Despite some of country has had democratic face cut on its administration, governance and constitutional setup but they are not truly playing and functioning according to its constitution prescribed roles because of the modulation and changing itself according to the world political and economic atmosphere. In this perspective since India's ancient history and philosophy it has been playing on prescribed path in terms of making all types of international covenant and convention with an interest to establish and sustain its historical charismatic and polished philosophy.

Though its age has been arrived at 75 but still it seems to be so stronger, steady, minor and sober in dealing all types of world and international issues on neutral aspects and genuine ways. To differ and vary itself from the other country's activities and arrogant behaviours has been following suitable and honesty constitutional philosophy therein its democratic image ,secular ideology and republic doctrines are further making value to its governance and administration, still its constitutional ideologies and philosophies are interestingly liked ,analysed ,reading and applauded by the several and million western country's citizens because India has been found so happy and splendid on its constitutional principles and ideologies thereby the name democracy getting unlimited famous and glory and also playing much more attractive role toward annexing country with its doctrines and adjusting with its host country is for make all needful important policies for the global people's development. nature of people and country surely and definitely varied according to its constitutional setup and formulations but in India people are eagerly and interestingly doing so many thoughtful activities with an interest to improve their motherland's culture and civilisations ,among the so many country's constitutional setup and party ideologies India's democracy name has been most famous and popular one in the nook and corner pf the world administration because its role ,constitutional formulation and governance are purely reflecting and revealing the bookish and stated meaning of the true democracy and also following all ruling and administering principles as its has been mentioned in the ancient political philosophy such as Kudilya ,Arthasasthra and other manuscripts.

All movements and actions of the India's democracy are directed and orchestrated purely on the path and route of the democratic aspects with an interest to save, guard and protect the golden culture and value of the democratic administration. In the world busiest administration democracy is spoken labelled in anywhere due to its needs and role in terms of solving present and upcoming world issues and problems ,this is the only administrative and constitutional name which strives for the welfare of the humanity without having any vested interest ,its name has been chosen and invented by the aspirant and social activities who struggled during the French revolution against corporate and capitalist administration thereby they advocated that democracy would be good administration and governance for the people's civil life and other development.

What is Democracy?

It is derived from the western country's Latin word refers for the people ,of the people and by the people according to Abraham Lincoln ,in multicultural society and country it is accommodating and gives hospitality to be all sections of people without any variation and deviation in its duty. Treating people, offering its welfare programmes to people and distributing government opportunities on egalitarian ways without any partiality and discriminations. In simple and humble it is known and perceived as a great umbrella in which under that people on different race, colour, caste and religion and community would be staying and residing with mutual trust within the parameters of the secular law, wherein nothing discriminative and partial treatment would occur and happen until secular and democratic law is being with them.

Chief duty of the democracy is distributing powers to states without any partiality and treating them equally within the jurisdictions of the democracy and secularism ,people are the epicentre and centre of the this administration which will make law and executive policies for the upliftment and progress of the downtrodden people and various section's growth. Administrative ,governing and ruling powers are drawn from the sovereign means people they do have an ultimate power toward determining and choosing the political representative and leaders on merit basis .Minority and weaker sections rights and privileges are neatly protected under the secured constitutional setup of the India's federal and democratic aspects wherein people are surviving and residing with all needful and necessary things without flaw ,this constitutional philosophy have been brought up in the several country with an aim to enable and uplift people to grow equally without any hurdles from its same fellow being in the all walk of life. It is goal and ambitions are varied totally from the rest of countries with an interest to save and protect people life and career without any maltreatment in social sections. In its 75 years its name has been understood and applauded by the various commonweal countries on account of its excellence and standard activities toward protecting human rights and life during the emergency and natural calamities ,in its surrounding countries its name has been spoken and praised by them on account of its marvellous and superficial helping and assisting role to uplift and emancipate them from all types known and unknown threat and menace .In terms of accommodating the various needs and necessities of the India's neighbours India has been one of the wonderful and magnificent country since its birth ,has been playing vital role toward structuring ,correcting and adjusting the needs and necessities of its neighbours country without any mild and major partiality. Diplomatically its role in South Asia has been in effective since its birth with an interest to protect and preserve dignity, rights, life, career, territory and cultural and political integrity from its opponents and belligerent countries, in this case its name and power has been recognised and estimated by all western countries that it is one of the peace making and establishing country in the global political gamut. It has not been liked any financial and materials needs excepting showing an interest to bring all countries together in this present scene of international politics.

While countries are striving to occupy ,encroach and fight for their self interest India has been excepted from all those self interest and vested interest circles on account of it is manifesting and identifying itself toward making peace ,prosperity, making freedom to people's career, creating good climate, atmosphere, sustaining justice and honesty inn all country's policy and actions with an interest to maintain global people's integrity .Despite some of countries are fearing in South Asia to be Chinese infiltration and army's attacks but India is none of the country has been making friendly and cordial with them beyond its opponent's country provocation and irritations on account of its tolerance capacity and interest of making peace and stability in South Asian Continent. In belligerent ways Chinese infiltration and fight insides of the India's territory has been help lot and often since 1947 all these it's immoral and uncontrolled territory occupying activities are tolerated and mitigated by making relevant and suitable inter-country protocol and policy making.

Both countries issues were taken to the knowledge and attention of the united nation Organisation to get solution and control its unfriendly infiltration and violations of territory rights and sovereignty. In this ground its conceit and haughty war making activities are being controlled and overridden by the India's strategic and diplomatic military approaches and political policy making ,have liberated all South Asian Countries from the fear of Chinese atrocity and violence in side of their governance and politics .Due to India's oppose and fight with Chinese military intervention in side of the South Asian regions has motivated rest of country to be valour and bravery without fear top its military atrocity .Beyond that India has been striving and attempting to restructure and reconstruct South Asians Integrity whenever it gets broken by the conspiracy activities of same South Asian country members and happen some skirmishes and numerous within the integrity of South Asian regions for the sack of attaining Individual goals and target. For Indi has been seeming to be effective country and energetic country in the international political scenarios is due to its peculiar and pure role in resolving world problems without any prejudiced interest and creating avenue to enjoy people's rights ,freedom and liberty without and hamper and vex.

From these assumptions and calculations even still in the international governance , decision making and global problem solving world people keep watching eagerly about India's steady footage in resolving global issues and also asking often opinion ,suggestion and other time being solutions from the India's policy makers and rulers toward sort-out and solve world problems arising in the field of food, hygienic, cultural, sports, arms, military, agricultural industry, forest, climate change and other administrative aspects .Because India's power and strength are grown threefold in the international governance herby its help and assistance are being sought by the rest of country with an interest to make changes in their existing infrastructures and invent something regarding to improve their country's economic and social status. This table explains clearly that it is one of the best and excellent forms of government works for the people's growth and development comparing to other constitutional ideologies, it has been using and keep plying all its marvellous constitutional and social ideologies for the people's liberty, life and career developments. Focusing more on social system than military system because it is good and mandatory one to make good social system wherein god law and society could be made, for which since India's independence India has been making huge and more polices to develop its internal infrastructure with an interest to lift its people life status in social, economical and political.

CONCLUSION

In existing counter's social, political and economical system India's social, economical and political system has been one of the effective, effervescent and stronger, which has been bringing lot of success and huge improvements in all relevant fields of the social, administrative, economical and political. On this strong basis India's democracy has been sound and stronger than other country's system. Its constitutional setup and political ideologies are seemed to be jealousy at the sight of international political actors due to its successful and splendid policy making, coordinating and integrating the society toward project itself as the unshakable and fearless India. Due to it's this collective energy of the collective people it is able to shine and stand on its own foot without losing its dignity and respects at the international rivalry and conflict situations. While every country is paying attention on strengthening its military and weapons to counter and make war with its opposite partner but India is only one country which has been striving continuously for the freedom, liberty and peace of the present and future's generations.
